

'Sophie'

First Sighted: 07/08/2013

Years seen: 2013-2018

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Sophie is one of the individuals that has been seen both in our summer and winter season. As Sophie has a very noticeable nick at the tip of the dorsal fin she is very easy to spot.

Reason for name: Sophie is one of the few dolphins where is actually know its sex and she is occasionally seen with a calf and therefore was given a common female name.

'Conor'

First Sighted: 26/07/2013

Years seen: 2013, 2015 - 2017

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Conor is one of our most easily recognizable dolphins, due to the very deep cut right through its dorsal fin.

We believe Conors injury was due to a very bad collision with a boat propeller. Even though a boat may have caused his injury Conor is definitely not at all shy around the boats.

Reason for name: Common Irish name

‘Funny’

First Sighted: 05/07/2007

Years seen: 2007-09, 2012-17

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Funny is one of our most regularly sighted dolphins and is often seen all year round, but its favorite time to be in Faxa bay is definitely summer. Funny seems to have a lot of friends and is often seen with other individuals and rarely the same ones, as it often changes from one group to another.

Reason for name: Funny is a funny dolphin

'Large Nick'

First Sighted: 22/11/2012

Years seen: 2012-17

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Our beloved mamma dolphin, Large Nick has been seen with a calf every single year since 2014, both in the summer and winter seasons. Both her and her calves are curious individuals and often come right up to the boat and even swim right underneath us!

Reason for name: Named due to the large cut or 'nick' in the dorsal fin.

'Sindri'

First Sighted: 18/11/2014

Years seen: 2014, 2015, 2017

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Sindri is one of our mama's, seen with calves in the wintertime (November). It's amazing that they can give birth in these very cold waters, Brrrrr! We mainly see Sindri during the wintertime, most likely when the herring is abundant in this area. Mmmmmmm Herring!

Reason for name: Sindri is a common Icelandic name.

'Puzzle'

First Sighted: 02/08/2007

Years seen: 2012-18

Where: Faxaflói

Interesting Information: Puzzle, has been seen frequently throughout the year since 2012 and loves being in the company of many others. Puzzle is also keen to bow-ride our boats, loves to people watch.

Reason for name: Named due to the tip of the dorsal fin that looks like a jigsaw puzzle piece.
